

What is a Hudder?

A Hudder is a traveler (traveling once or as much as 30 times or more a year) who is interested to make money when traveling by carrying a document and/or a package and making money for every shipment carried. Hudders take advantage of their unutilized luggage capacity to carry as simple as a document or packages up to 10kg.

Who are the Hudders joining the Hudder network?

Hudders are typically working already as part-time or full-time employees in many different types of organizations and students become Hudders as a side job (on demand gig) to make extra money. Our most popular Hudders include cabin crew, consultants, trainers, teachers, college students and frequent family travelers. Most importantly, Hudders are not employed in any way with Huddex and will not jeopardize or affect any existing employment and their confidentiality is maintained throughout the process. A Hudder will never have to disclose their name or phone number or meet a Huddex customer.

Which countries are currently accepting Hudders?

We are currently looking for Hudders in the following countries: Bahrain, Egypt, France, Germany, India, Jordan, KSA, Kuwait, Lebanon, Pakistan, Switzerland, UAE and UK. This means if you are residing in any of those countries, you can register as a Hudder and become part of our network.

How much money can a Hudder make?

A Hudder simply makes $20 for every document, $40 for every package under 3KG and $60 for every package under 10KG regardless of the country you are leaving from or the destination you are traveling to. For example, if you receive offers and accept to take 2 documents and a 4KG package on a single flight going from Dubai to London, that means you will be paid $(2 * $20) + (1 * $60)$ that is a total of $100. Once you are in London, you may receive an offer to take a document and a 2KG package for example back from London to Dubai, which means an additional $60 on the way back. For the round- trip ticket from Dubai to London the Hudder would have made a total $160!

How will a Huddex ensure the package or document carried is safe and does not contain any potential illegal content?

Huddex utilizes advanced scanners that scan and label every document or package to ensure it complies with the safety and security standards of both Huddex and with airport security and standards across all the countries where our network extends. We also provide an additional feature called “The Right to Inspect” which allows our Hudders to inspect any package they are taking for their extra comfort. When we send an offer to take a shipment, we provide the item details as well as a picture of the item before a Huddex accepts/rejects to take the shipment. Finally, we maintain the identification of the shipper within our database for additional security and no shipment is accepted without a shipper identification registered in our secure database.

How will Huddex know when there is a Huddex flight scheduled so that the Huddex can receive offers for a shipment request?

There are three ways to ensure that a Huddex scheduled flight is entered into our Huddex database:

- 1- When a Huddex registers with their email, we will automatically check their emails for any scheduled flights and parse those flights so that the Huddex does not need to remember to enter those flights manually.
- 2- A Huddex can forward any email or flight details even from a screen shot to flights@huddex.com and our team and AI engine will save these flights into our system and a Huddex can see these flights in the Huddex app. Cabin crew can forward their monthly/weekly schedules even as pdf files and their flights will be stored within minutes and shown in the app.
- 3- A Huddex can manually enter their flight details in the app and just like that, a Huddex can start receiving offers for shipments.

What are the items that Hudders are usually carrying?

The most popular items being carried by Hudders include mobile phones, medicine, important documents, cosmetics, watches, clothes, shoes and tablets.

How will Hudders get paid?

Every Huddex registered in any of the countries we operate in, will be paid locally in their bank accounts. The Huddex can choose to get paid via Bank or PayPal account. The payment for a shipment will be made as soon as the package is delivered as per the instructions given to the Huddex based on their location/destination city.

What will a Hudder do after reaching the destination country?

We care about the Hudder experience and as such, you are not required to do anything until you arrive from the airport to your final location in country (apartment, hotel, etc..) from there you will share your location and we will provide you with instructions on either a drop off point within walking distance from where you are, or scheduling one of our third party delivery partners to pick up the document/package from where you are. This means nearly zero effort by the Hudder and you leave the work for us to do.
